The Five Lens Development Platform is a set of products, processes, and technology designed to maximize human performance. At its core sits the 5LQ, which is an integrated assessment tool.

This dynamic and multidimensional FIVE LENS approach to measuring and reporting on behavior goes further than any other methodology in terms of taking into account the complexity of human behavior. Each lens provides self-insight based on a unique model of human development.

The platform draws on the 5LQ questionnaire to produce reports that have layers of depth and provide possible development directions for the delegate. These individual results are then pulled through as a golden thread into a range of customizable products and processes.
